Expression Of Her Love For Desert

By LEE CHRISTOPHER

They just don't make them like Nina Paul Shumway any more.

She is a composite of all the incredibly intrepid women who beat their way Westward along the unmarked covered-wagon trail across the plains and mountains of this vast America. She is strong and fearless, gentle and imaginative, ageless and forever young, and delicately attuned to the beauty and magic of all outdoors.

Perhaps her own phrase from the dust-jacket of her quite won-derful book, "Your Desert and Mine," best describes her spirit . . my intense emotional re sponse to every phase of this strange and enthralling adventure called Life . . ." And woven into that intense emotional response is a passionate and timeless love affair with the California desert. It has molded her way of life, her community activities, her avoderbrush scaled down to a size quite confortable for an elf. This one is almost 4,000 feet up in the San Jacinto Mountains, part of the 640 acres discovered by Mrs. Shumway and her husband when they were on one of their many rambles afoot and on horseback through the desert hills.

They homesteaded the land, and she and her husband - a prominent builder - created the cabin by hand with the help of an occasion al workman. Since her husband's death, almost 20 years ago, this small, quiet woman has continued work on the cabin, and brought into it from her indefatigable explorations a wealth of Indian artifacts that should be in a museum. A Part of the Land

Seeming to grow right out of the rocky landscape, the cabin nestles against a huge rearing of boulders that seem at once to protect it and threaten to overpower it. The original structure, now the kitchen, was placed on the only piece of flat ground; to add a large livingroom, den, and entranceway, it was necessary to blast out great sections of the

Now the outcropping that soars beside the cabin continues within to form one side of the den, and Mrs. Shumway has planted it with a wealth of fern and greenery to create a living wall.

The windows of the living room a never-ending and ever-changing panorama of mountains and desert. Overhead are the great handhewn beams that support the ceilto Imperial.

Well-Groomed Travelers Need Plastic Bags

Here's a tip to help you have that well-groomed look when you are living out of a suitcase. It comes from Anne Sterling, director of consumer education for the American Institute of Laundering. She advises you to pack your dresses and suits right in the plastic bag in which they come from he dry cleaner. When you take them out and hang them up, she says, you will find that the wrin-kles fall out easily and the clothes look good. Using the plastic takes up no additional room and adds no weight to your luggage, but it does your clothes a world of good. BILL S. SACHE Number of Students "NAME BAND" EXPERIENCE Now Leading His Band for Phone: 324-2838 for Appt.

CAPTURING THE MOOD of the desert is this unique vase made by Mrs. Shumway from the water-storage part of a Whipple yucca plant. Sand-beige in color the vase has an interesting texture, created not only by the ridges where the leaves have been removed, but also by wandering channels chewed out by beetles. In it, Mrs. Shumway has arranged reddish-brown pods and other dried desert materials. Years ago, she made a much larger edition of the yucca vase for The Desert Inn at the

"HEY DOC"

Have You Heard the News? A fella told me that the greatest home buy in the desert is Rac-A fella told me that the greatest home buy in the desert is Racquet Club Road Estates. He told me that you can buy one of these three bedroom two bath homes for $21,500 with as little as $1,250 down. He told me so much about it that I had to take a look for myself, and darned if he wasn't right. I sure was surprised to find that the carpets, draperies and landscaping were included, and I also found that I could trade my vacant lot in as part payment, but Doc, HERE'S THE BEST PART OF THE NEWS, the model home they are using now has been sold and they will be moving into a new one in the next few days, the decorating is going to be done by Arthur Elrod and you know what that means, it means that it is bound to be beautiful.

Base Crook Wills Sets NL Record

LOS ANGELES (UPI) An air of gloom hung over the Los Angeles Dodgers today that even Maury Wills' new National League record for base stealing did not offset as the club saw its lead in the pennant race cut to a half

The attitude of the players was expressed by Wills Friday night after the Dodgers were beaten 10-1 by the Pittsburgh Pirates for their fourth loss in five games when he said:
